DVD Format Tops 25,000 During 2024

The preliminary DVD title count for 2024 is 25,015 new releases for the year. This number will expand during the weeks and months ahead as stragglers are unearthed and added to the various databases.

2024 turned out to be the second busiest release year for DVD in the 28-year history of the format (launched in March of 1997). Only 2023, with 27,289 new arrivals stands ahead of 2024 ... let that sink in, over 52,000 titles have been released in the last 24 months.

The DVD marketplace is on fire, but by some accounts, DVD is dead, long live digital. From a traditional studio POV that certainly rings true.

Eureka's Dr. Mabuse Collection, Apr. 01

UK-based Eureka Entertainment, with domestic sales and distribution support provided by MVD Entertainment Group, has locked into Apr. 1 for the debut of the four-disc, six-film Blu-ray collection titled Mabuse Lives! Dr. Mabuse at CCC: 1960-1964.

In 1921 Norbert Jacques introduced Dr. Mabuse, a "super villain" in his novel, "Dr. Mabuse, the Gambler," to the literary world. None other than Fritz Lang would bring Jacques' character to the screen the same

Apr. 08, Radiance Hardboiled Pulp

UK-based Radiance Films, with domestic sales and distribution expertise provided by MVD Entertainment Group, will be releasing the three-film, three-disc Blu-ray collection titled Hardboiled: Three Pulp Thrillers by Alain Corneau on Apr. 8.

Included in the collection are Police Python 357, A Hell of a Woman and Choice of Arms.

If you recognize director John Farrow's 1948 film noir adaptation of Kenneth Fearing's 1946 novel, The Big Clock, starring Ray Milland, then Police Python 357 will ring many bells. Not only is this 1977 film a well-produced adaptation (updated with flair by Corneau), but the casting of Yves Montand and Simone Signoret is nothing short of brilliant. Police Python 357 did not reach the arthouse circuit domestically until 1980.

The combination of filmmaker Corneau and actor Montand would repeat in the 1981 (1983 for domestic arthouse consumption) with the complicated heist thriller, Choice of Arms, which teams Montand with international stars Catherine Deneuve

O'Scope's The Vourdalak On Apr. 08

Oscilloscope Laboratories announced this past week that writer/director Adrien Beau's gothic — and very stylish — vampire tale, The Vourdalak, will be arriving in the domestic physical media marketplace on Apr. 8 as both DVD and Blu-ray production offerings.

The film made its debut at the Venice Film Festival in early September of 2023, worked the festival circuit and was subsequently acquired for domestic distribution by Oscilloscope. A brief arthouse showcase happened in June of last year ... the ARR works out to 284 days.

There is nothing like being robbed by highwaymen and left abandoned in the woods that might put someone at a disadvantage in dealing with the locals. Such is the fate of a French Marquis — on a mission for the King of France — by the name of Jacques Antoine Saturnin d'Urfe (Kacey Mottet Klein — Being 17, Sister, Home), who, after some wandering, comes across one

Sony Gets It Right With Kraven, Mar. 04

Sony Pictures Home Entertainment gets it right and some of the other "players" in Hollywood (metaphorically speaking) these days should take note.

Case in point is the asset management of director J. C. Chandor's Kraven the Hunter, starring Aaron Taylor-Johnson as the title character, a Marvel Comics anti-hero creation.

Wait. This film "bombed" at the box office, so why is it special in terms of "asset management?"

Here's why!! The film has a reported production budget in the $120 million range and you could argue that its existence in the cinematic universe was a mistake ... a studio

Companion From Warner Bros., Apr. 01

Warner Bros. Discovery Home Entertainment has also selected Apr. 1 as the street for the full-spread physical media launch of writer/director Drew Hancock's robotics terror fest, Companion.

The ARR is a quick-turn to market with just a 60-day window since the film's theatrical rollout. The box office take currently stands at 20.1 million.

The physical media array will be stand-alone editions for DVD, Blu-ray and 4K Ultra HD formats (no Combo Packs).

The premium VOD window hit on Feb. 18, just 18 days into the film's theatrical run, which gives the "Helper" community six full weeks to push bootlegged Blu-ray editions of their own to unsuspecting genre fans.

This all just seems too quick ...

Bonus features include three featurettes — "I Feel, Therefore I Am," "Love, Eli" and "AI Horror."

Lionsgate's Flight Risk On Apr. 01

Lionsgate Home Entertainment has selected Apr. 1 as the street date for a full-spread physical media launch of director Mel Gibson's Flight Risk, starring Mark Wahlberg.

The ARR works out to just 67 days from its theatrical launch to the home entertainment marketplace. The domestic box office gross currently stands at $28.9 million.

The film had a soft opening, but steadily built ticket sales through word of mouth to fly past the $25 million mark in box office receipts. Historically that has been an important plateau to reach, because you need three factors at work to achieve that number.

Disney's A Complete Unknown, Apr. 01

As we come up to the annual Oscar Awards telecast (this year on March 2) the big question (among several) will Timothée Chalamet win the Best Actor gold for his magnificent performance as Bob Dylan in director James Mangold's film adaptation of Elijah Wald's 2015 bio book, "Dylan Goes Electric!" A Complete Unknown.

Walt Disney Studios Home Entertainment will be bringing A Complete Unknown home as both a stand-alone Blu-ray edition as well as a 4K Ultra HD/Blu-ray Combo Pack purchasing option on Apr. 1.

The ARR works out to 95 days and the domestic box office take currently stands at $72.4 million.

Universal's Dog Man Arrives, Apr. 01

Universal Pictures Home Entertainment joins the Apr. 1 physical media party with the release of DVD and Blu-ray editions of writer/director Peter Hastings' film adaptation of Dav Pilkey's graphic novel series, Dog Man.

The ARR is a swift-to-market 60 days and the domestic box office take was $78.7 million.

We say "join" the party on Apr. 1 as the studios have seemingly all settle on that date (no spreading things around?) with such high profile releases like Disney's Mufasa: The Lion King and A Complete

Flight Continued

A film needs screen count (seats), promotional dollars (awareness) and most importantly it needs an audience to spread the word after the opening weekend to maintain momentum (otherwise screen count and seats available drop quickly).

Take any of these three factors out of the mix and the chances of a film reaching $25 million in ticket sales ranks somewhere between slim and none.

Of the 15,907 films released theatrically since 1997 (the launch year of the DVD format), only 15 percent have managed the feat.

Planned for release are stand-alone DVD and Blu-ray editions, plus two 4K Ultra HD/Blu-ray Combo Pack selections (with or without the SteelBook option).

Bonus features include the "making of" featurette titled "Risk Management - Making Flight Risk."

Emperor JONES

BRUTUS JONES GOES FROM STAGE TO SCREEN!

The murderous Brutus Jones escapes from jail and bluffs his way to becoming the emperor of a Caribbean island. Jones claims to have magical powers and rules with an iron fist. Based on Eugene O'Neill's Expressionistic play, the film stars Paul Robeson in the same role he played on the Broadway stage. Brutus Jones is an unforgettable character, and The Emperor Jones is an American classic! This version includes the final scene restored to its original blue tint.

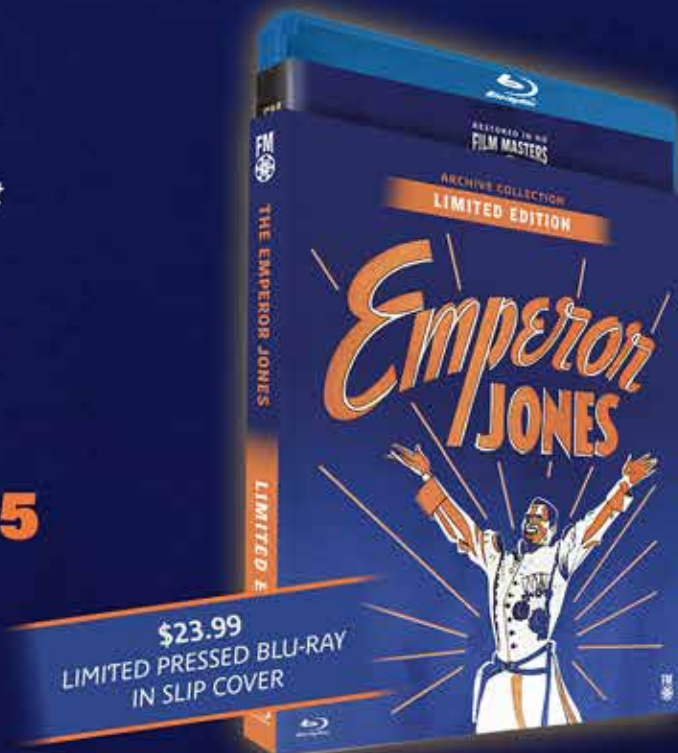

INCLUDES:

Bonus film, The Tallest Tree in Our Forest (1977), a documentary on actor Paul Robeson

Commentary and liner notes by Karen Burroughs Hannsberry

Eureka Continued year in the two-part epic silent film, Dr. Mabuse the Gambler, starring Rudolf Klein-Rogge. Lang would also direct the first sound film about Jacques' character, The Testament of Dr. Mabuse in 1933 (also starring Klein-Rogge) ... and that would be it for nearly three decades.

In post-war Germany, Polish-born Jewish survivor Artur Brauner formed Central Cinema Compagnie-Film (CCC for short) with the intent of making movies about the horrors of the Nazis in Germany, but soon found that there was little demand for such "entertainment" (commercially-speaking). So he turned his focus elsewhere.

By 1960 CCC had become successful and so Brauner had the idea of teaming up with "exile" filmmaker Fritz Lang to make yet another Dr. Mabuse film. It is this series of CCC-produced films that Eureka Entertainment has assembled.

The six films that CCC produced began with The Thousand Eyes of Dr. Mabuse, with Wolfgang Priess starring as Mabuse, in 1960 ... Lang directed. Both director and star would re-team the following year for The Return of Doctor Mabuse.

Priess would do four additional films ... The Invisible Dr. Mabuse (1962), The Testament of Dr. Mabuse (aka: The Terror of Doctor Mabuse) (also 1962), Dr. Mabuse vs. Scotland Yard (1963) and the series would wrap up with The Death Ray of Dr. Mabuse in 1964 (using archived footage of Priess as Mabuse).

Eureka gives fans both the original German language versions, as well English-dubbed for all six films.

Of note, The Thousand Eyes of Dr. Mabuse was released in the domestic market in 1960 in German, with English subtitles and re-released in 1966 theatrically as an English-dubbed See Eureka Page 20

Much of their commitment to DVD cuts along the lines of New Theatrical product offerings (122) and Television Series (96), with much of these new movie releases destined for Redbox slots.

For the entire year only 39 Theatrical Catalog (pre-1997, the launch year of DVD) titles were delivered to consumers, and many of these were DVD-R replacements for previously released replicated versions.

The Return of Doctor Mabuse also arrived in 1966 as an English-dubbed theatrical release.

The third film in the series was released both in 1965 and again in 1966 as English-dubbed theatrical releases in the domestic market — The Invisible Dr. Mabuse and The Invisible Horror respectively.

The same pattern was followed for The Testament of Dr. Mabuse (1965) and retitled as The Terror of Doctor Mabuse in 1966.

The last two films in the series skipped a theatrical run and were issued as English-dubbed television films.

Bonus features for Eureka Entertainment’s Mabuse Lives! Dr. Mabuse at CCC: 1960-1964 include commentaries for all six films, a 2002 video session with Preiss and two featurettes — “Mabuse Lives at CCC” and “Kriminology.”

In fairness, part of this complacency lies with the nature of DVD format itself. Within ten years of the launch of DVD, these rights owners began reissuing already replicated titles, but soon found that they were in direct competition with themselves. During the Golden Era of the VHS format, no consumer in their right mind would buy a used VHS tape, but these same consumers soon discovered that a used DVD was just as good as a new copy.

Over time, vast numbers of replicated DVD inventories began to pile up in warehouses ... it became an expensive proposition to compete with the ever-expanding used marketplace and so they liquidated these inventories at bargain prices and moved on.

That aside, it's clear that the legacy Hollywood Studios now have their collective focus elsewhere and not so much on the DVD format that they launched back in 1997.

The next source of new title release activity would be the Boutique and Independent labels. We monitored 248 distinct sources among this — very diverse — group during 2024.

They chimed in with 4,396 new DVDs during the year, or 17.57 percent of the overall release pie.

If the studios and the indies combine for 18.85 percent of the overall release count, then what makes up the other 81.15 percent? More on that in a moment, but it is worth noting that what “we” see in reporting on the home entertainment industry is but the tip of the proverbial iceberg. Just like an iceberg floating in the open ocean, twenty-percent above water and eighty-percent below the waterline and out of view (in a traditional sense).

These 248 non-studio sources (indies) provide DVD releases in all of the 25 categories that we monitor, however their largest focus is on Direct-to-Video movie releases. 1,308 of 4,396 of total — 29.75 percent — are films that skipped playing at the local multiplex and went straight to DVD.

The next in line (in terms of title count) is Religion (a very active niche market) with 537 new releases during 2024. That may come as a surprise to many, but that's what is going on “out there” on a weekly basis ... roughly ten new religion-themed DVDs each and every week head home to consumers.

Well down the list are New Theatrical (266) and Theatrical Catalog (195) ... indeed, there were 509 “Special Interest” DVDs released in 2024 from this group of 248 non-studio sources, which is more than the two aforementioned major focus categories combined.

The Boutique and Independent Labels are a very diverse group — eclectic might be a more useful term in describing this source of DVD activity. There are lots of small operators who cater to specific audiences/consumer bases.

The next big group — we monitor 104 distinct sources in this category — are what we have come to call “Microbroadcasters.” They churned out 9,145 DVD releases in 2024, representing 36.56 percent of the overall count.

Alliance for Community Media

The Alliance for Community Media (allcommunitymedia.org, the group that monitors access television) refers to these as “Public, Educational and Governmental (PEG) access organizations.” They currently have 1,684 such PEGs in their database. The sub-group that we have identified – so far — sell DVD copies of their programming to their local customers (some also offer Blu-ray as a purchasing option).

For the most part, these Microbroadcasters (PEG) focus on Sports (2,383) and Special Interest (6,226) as the core of their DVD product offerings.

Included in the Special Interest catch-all category are local government meetings, graduation ceremonies, local parades and other community programming (gardening, cooking, pet care, etc.). These local “events” are broadcast on public access channels, so the sunk-costs of the programming are already cooked in ... some have discovered that there is also a market for copies of

Think about it, the Friday night football game is going to be played no matter what ... and the local telecast crew (often volunteers) will be on hand to call the action. So why not offer copies for sale? Every nickel counts when you are talking about public access television ... indeed, some of the local production companies (videographers) offer their services on a for-hire basis to help cover costs (weddings, events, etc.). Every nickel counts!!

Just look at the numbers. 104 of the 1,684 PEGs are selling DVDs and they are churning out hours and hours of locally-produced programming. The sales may not be studio-level, but it adds up, especially when it comes to sports and graduations (perhaps not so much with the local Zoning Board of Appeals meeting).

And finally, the second-best DVD release year on record is largely driven by piracy. When the rights' owners don't tend to business (not worth the effort it appears), the vacuum (consumer demand) is filled by what we refer to as "Helpers" (bootleggers, pirates, thieves, etc.).

In 2024 they, the "Helpers," delivered 11,153 new DVD releases, or 44.59 percent of the total count.

What do these "Helpers" thrive on? What demand hole(s) are they filling? Theatrical Catalog is the answer — the traditional studios released 39 pre-1997 theatrical releases on DVD during the year; the independent labels kicked in for another 195, but the "Helpers" made those numbers look puny with a whopping 5,347 DVD releases in 2024!

We monitor 86 active "Helpers" in the DVD market, but the number is actually much larger (especially when it comes to Blu-ray). Excluded are operators from China/Hong Kong, Ukraine, Sri Lanka, Indonesia and other exotic locations. We even go so far as to identify the physical source of the "Helper" being monitored and when it proves to be a Chinese front, all the data that has been collected is removed from the various databases to keep it clean.

If you go over to eBay, you will find that the piracy of theatrical and television/cable series programming is simply out of control ... it actually makes one wonder if eBay is actually a Chinese-owned and controlled business.

The same holds true for etsy.com, which started out as a marketplace for artisans, but has devolved into a platform for film and series thieves (seemingly unchecked).

It should be noted, nine of the ten most prolific "Helper" sources have their own web pages (http) ... which means that the legacy studios could easily go after them — they are right there operating in the open!

On the eBay side it gets a little trickier as the same "Helper" will operate under various names (surprise, they are all at the same address) ... they will shutdown, open up, take a vacation, shutdown and then pop up again. The trick in finding them is to simply go over to eBay (take the challenge) and type in the newest/hottest Netflix series or the latest theatrical hit that just got a VOD date (often six to eight weeks before the legit physical media rollout).

Here's an example, go to ebay.com, type in "Mufasa the Lion King, 2024 movie, Blu-ray" and bingo dozens of "China/Hong Kong" sources will immediately pop up ... all of them are clearly selling illicit copies of this Disney film and we don't count them.

25,015 new DVD releases last year ... 44.59 percent are pirated. And that doesn't include the ones from China.

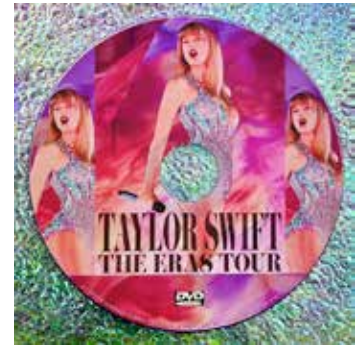

There are two major factors driving the crush of new DVD arrivals.

First, consumer demand for films and series that is being largely ignored by the legacy studios and other major production sources (think: Netflix, Amazon Prime, DVD In 2024 Continued Apple TV, etc.). This demand for movies and TV series on DVD is being fulfilled by alternative distribution (“Helpers”), especially when there appears to be little appetite to play “whack-a-mole” by said rights’ owners.

The indifference is so bad that in 28 years of monitoring the home entertainment marketplace there has never been so many major films unreleased on any of the three physical media formats with box office numbers at these levels — Taylor Swift: The Eras Tour (box office: $180.7 million), Killers of the Flower Moon ($68 million), Napoleon ($61.5 million), Argylle ($45.2 million), Barbarian ($40.8 million), Renaissance: A Film by Beyoncé ($32.8 million) ... and the Best Picture Oscar-winner of 2021, CODA, are all MIA.

Never, repeat, never! Oh, but they are available from multiple “Helper” sources. So you can easily see the problem.

That’s the first driving factor — consumer demand coupled with rights’ holder indifference. The vacuum, because nature abhors it, is filled. So instead of one DVD version of CODA (as just an example), you get ten, from ten different sources.

You want The Gray Man, starring Ryan Gosling on DVD? A film with a reported production budget of $200 million from Netflix ... not from Netflix (of course), but from “Helpers,” that’s how you get it on DVD (or Blu-ray).

It’s a long, long list of major film and series productions ... that grows longer each week!

Going hand in hand with this “unfilled” consumer demand is a dramatic change in technology.

Indeed, the second driving factor in the rapid “recovery” of the DVD format has been the switch from traditionally replicated DVDs to that of manufacturing on See DVD in 2024 Page 25

But once it was put into production do you just give up?

OK, so you have a film that will likely lose money, do you toss in the towel? No, you take a poorly dealt hand and make the most of it.

First, Sony nursed Kraven the Hunter into the box office winner’s circle (in terms of consumer profile) by generating $25 million in ticket sales.

Second, a premium VOD window was opened on Jan. 14 (32 days into the film’s theatrical run), which creamed the non-cinema fans lust for this Marvel creation.

And on Mar. 4 a full-spread physical media launch capped it off, which will yield an ARR of 81 days.

Now compare that full-plate distribution model to, oh say, Netflix’s launch of the far superior Russo Brothers’ The Gray Man.

What was the box office?

When did the physical media launch take place?

How about none and never?

Sony can walk and chew gum at the same time, while some in the new “Hollywood” haven’t quite mastered that.

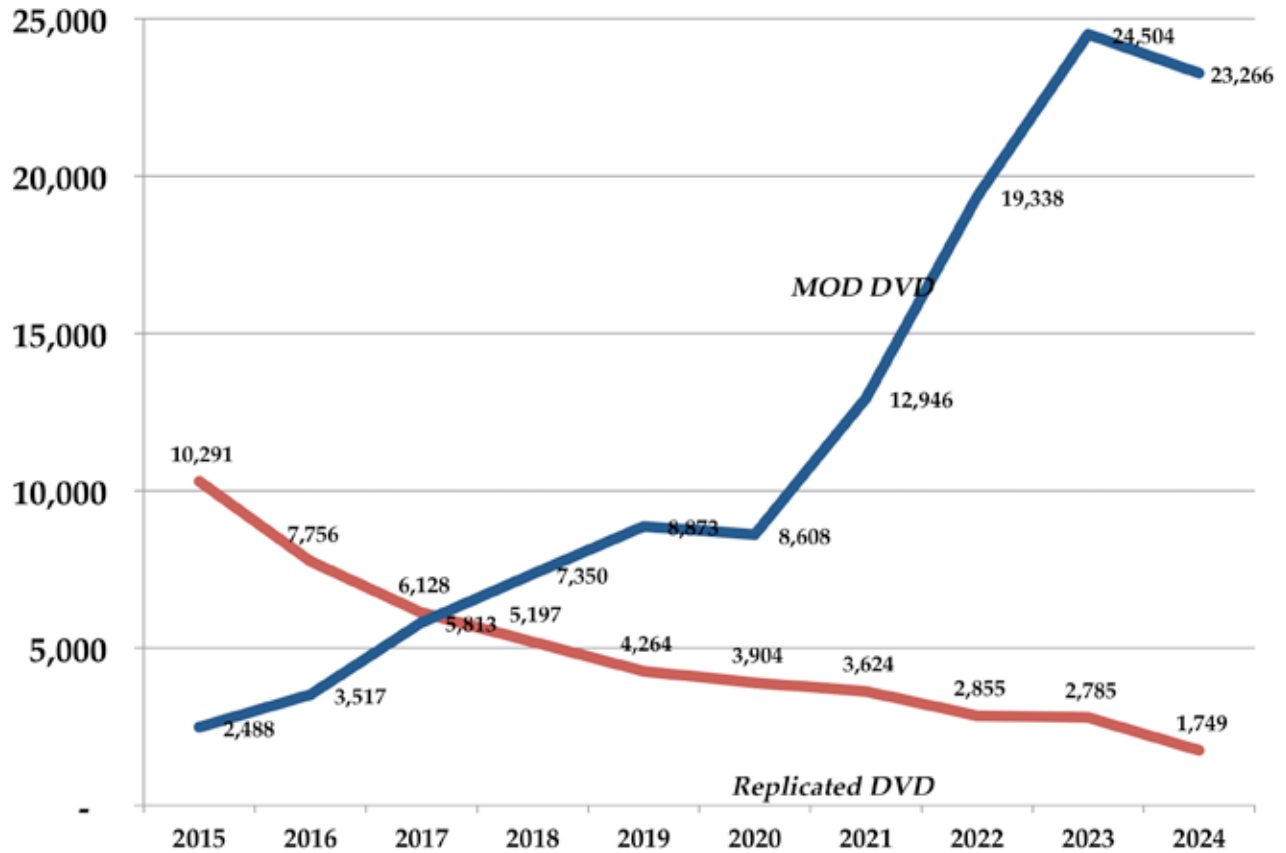

Planned for release are stand-alone DVD and Blu-ray editions, plus a 4K Ultra HD/Blu-ray Combo Pack purchasing option.

Bonus features include a blooper reel, outtakes, deleted and extended scenes and two featurettes — “Kraven’s First Hunt: The Direction” and “Allies & Antagonists: The Killer Cast.”

demand (MOD). DVD SKU counts peaked in 2006 with the arrival of the Blu-ray format and then annual output “crabbed” sideways for the next 14 years ... with a steady

DVD Manufacturing: 2015 - 2024 MOD (Manufactured on Demand) versus Replicated

In 2015, for example, there were 10,291 replicated DVD titles and 2,488 MOD releases on DVD. In contrast to that, in 2024 there were only 1,749 traditionally replicated DVD releases and the number of MOD releases expanded to 23,266. Anyone can burn a DVD and call it a release ... the same sort of “physical media” (printed that is) revolution that Johannes Gutenberg spawned with the invention of the printing press in the year 1440 is literally taking place right now in the physical media world of DVD, Blu-ray and 4K Ultra HD.

With MOD there are no inventory risks. You get an order ... you make it and then ship it!

To that point, not only were there over 25,000 new DVD releases in 2024 — with 93 percent MOD — but both the Blu-ray and the 4K Ultra HD formats both set new records for release totals during the year (with Blu-ray also shifting heavily to MOD).

These two formats will be the focus of part two of the 2024 summary (next edition of the report).

such “local,” who tells him to get lost ... but he might find some help at the nearby Gorcha farm.

So off d’Urfe goes, wandering once again in the woods. Without giving the plotline (no spoilers) away, let’s just say he would have been far better off getting lost again.

It seems that the Gorcha family has been in a blood feud with the Turks (all this takes in 18th Century in Eastern Europe), who have been raiding farms and villages in the area. There’s a vampire “myth” (curse, call it what will) at play as well. The eldest son, Jegor (Gregoire Colin), has been advised by his father that if he isn’t back safe at home in six nights (off to fight the Turks) don’t let him in ... he’s become a Vourdalak!!

Jegor doesn’t believe in such fairy tales. To complicate matters even further — in a house where each meal is an adventure — the wayward Marquis has taken a fancy to Sdenka (Ariane Labeled) — Jegor’s sister — and makes his best try at seduction.

Let’s just say that the “family meals” get a lot more interesting the longer this French emissary remains with this clan in the woods.

The Vourdalak, a gothic horror delight, is presented in French with English subtitles.

Bonus features include a behind-the-scenes featurette and two short films from writer/director Adrien Beau — Les Condiments Irréguliers and La Petite Sirene.

Dylan Continued

The premium VOD window opens on Feb. 25, which gives the Helper community five weeks to push illicit Blu-ray copies of their own to unsuspecting consumers (their format of choice for bandwidth, especially for a film such as A Complete Unknown ... which clocks in at 141 minutes).

The film is nominated for eight Oscars, including Best Picture and both Best Director and Best Adapted Screenplay for James Mangold (Cop Land, Identity, Walk the Line, 3:10 to Yuma, Indiana Jones and the Dial of Destiny), plus the aforementioned Timothée Chalamet, along with Edward Norton (as Pete Seeger) and Monica Barbaro (as Joan Baez) in the Supporting Actor/Actress categories respectively.

Bonus features include commentary by Mangold, plus the four-part featurette titled “The Making of A Complete Unknown.”

Unknown, Sony Pictures’ One of Them Days, Lionsgate’s Flight Risk and Warner Bros. Discovery’s Companion.

Wildly popular with kids, Pilkey’s Dog Man series gets the full animation treatment as his famous “hybrid” character takes on the sinister Petey, a cat with plans to clone himself!

Bonus features include commentary from Hastings, a collection of eight deleted and extended scenes, a pair of “tutelage” features — “Howl to Draw Flip-O-Rama Style” and “Howl to Make Doughnuts for Dogs” — and two featurettes — “Meet the Pack” and “The Making of Dog Man: A Sarah Hatoff Exclusive.”

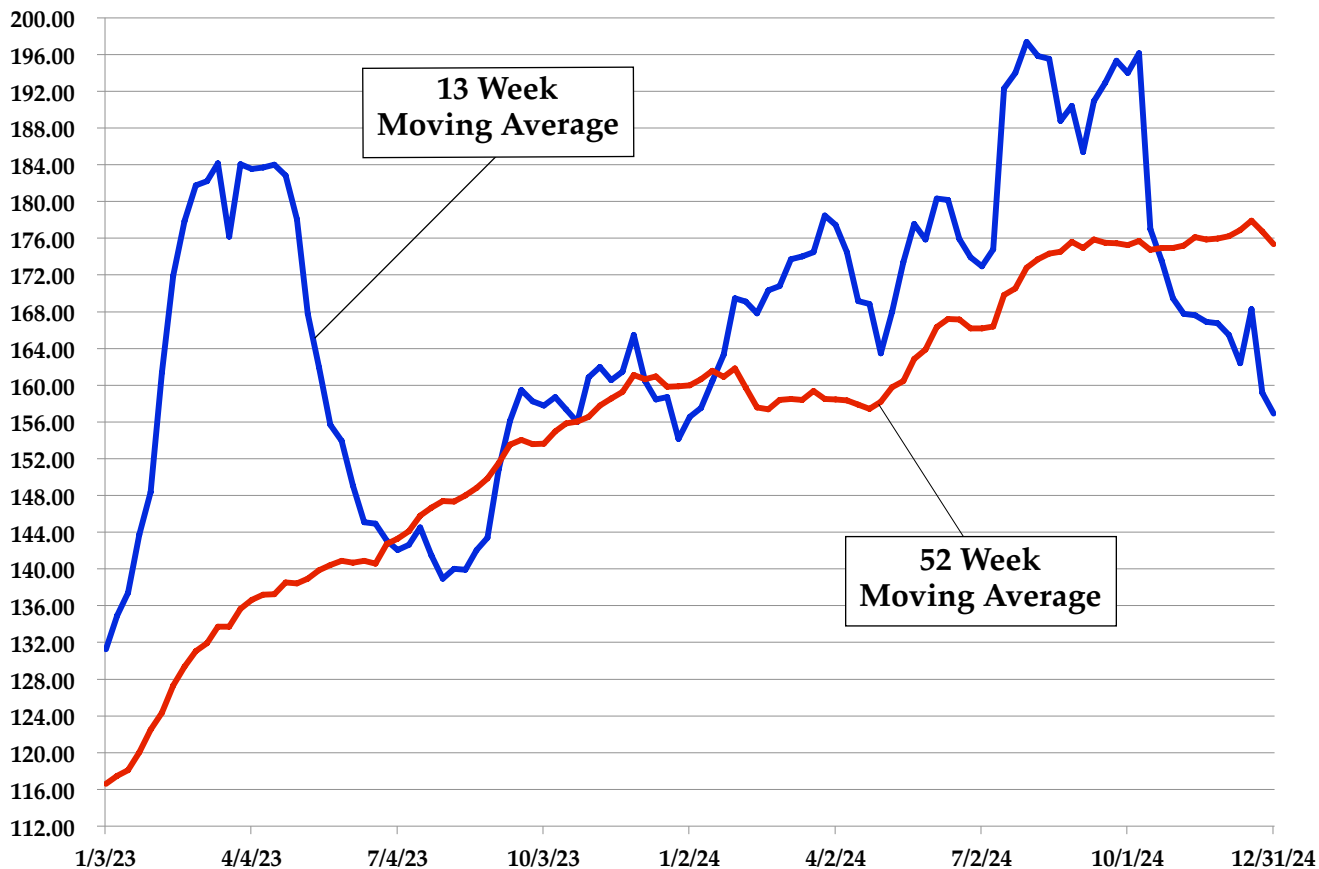

Also heading home as a full-spread physical media launch on Apr. 1 is first-time director Jonathan Eusebio’s action/comedy, Love Hurts, starring Ke Huy Quan (Everything Everywhere All at Once ... and way back in 1984 as “Short Round” in Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom) as a mild mannered real estate agent with a “hidden” past. The ARR is an insanely quick 53 days and the box office gross was $14.5 million.

Planned for distribution are stand-alone DVD and Blu-ray editions, as well as a 4K Ultra HD/Blu-ray Combo Pack purchasing option.

Bonus features an alternate ending, deleted and extended scenes and a trio of production featurettes — “The Ke to Gable,” “The Heart of Love Hurts” and “Stunts Hurt.”

Radiance Continued and Gerand Depardieu.

The third film in the series is A Hell of A Woman (aka: Série Noire), which opened theatrically in France in 1979, arthouse circuit in the United States in 1982 and then was reissued by Rialto Pictures in 2019.

The film is a screen adaptation of Jim Thompson's 1954 novel about a door-to-door salesman (played by Patrick Dewaere (Going Places, The French Detective, Hotel America, etc.) who comes across a teenager (Marie Trintignant) who has been forced into prostitution by her aunt (Jeanne Herviale). His solution, with lots of twists and turns, is to kill the aunt and free the girl ... the bodies pile up as he sets about to achieve his goal.

All three films in the Hardboiled: Three Pulp Thrillers by Alain Corneau Blu-ray collection from Radiance Films on Apr. 8 are presented in French with optional English subtitles.

Bonus goodies include commentary on Police Python 357 by film historian Mike White, a collection of archival video sessions with the likes of Corneau, Marie Trintignant, Patrick Dewaere, Deneuve, Montand and Depardieu, the feature-length documentary titled Série Noire: The Darkness of the Soul and the featurette titled "Shooting Choice of Arms."

The ARR (Asset Rollover Rate) measures the length of time (in days) between a motion picture's initial theatrical release and its debut in the DVD market. Only those films released beginning in January of 1997 are included in the grid. Box Office performance and release dates have been compiled from Daily Variety and Hollywood Reporter charts published each week.
